Lions Enjoy Charter Night

LAC LA BICHE — The Lions Club annual charter night and banquet was enjoyed by some 40 Lions and their wives, Oct. 30 in the Masonic Hall. A turkey dinner, served by the United Church Ladies' Aid, was thoroughly enjoyed by all present.

Lions Club President E. Dobson was chairman. Announcing Tail-twister Sid Lore kept the audience in good humor. Mayor Lion Steve Hamar gave the address of welcome. W. J. Chester introduced the guest speaker, Wally Knott of Gibbons, zone chairman. Another special guest was Ron McDonald of Bon Accord.

Later in the evening the presentation of a desk set to past president Sid Lore was made by President E. Dobson.

After the showing of a film on curling, the evening concluded with a dance. Leo Gargus and George Karasinski supplied the music.

Lac la Biche

Hallowe'en passed quite quietly in this town. The garbage cans and oil drums which are commonly littered on main streets of many towns and villages on the morning of Nov. 1 were quite noticeably lacking here. The usual crowd of youngsters knocking on doors asking for "tricks or treats" were around this year, but they seemed quite peaceful.

It has just been learned that Poole Construction Co. has been awarded the contract to build a number of houses and private garages for the Department of Transport here. The location is to be on the south side of Peace Avenue, west of the George Langevin property.

Lucille Tatum and her mother recently returned from points in Idaho and Washington, where they visited friends and relatives for several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Omer Dostaler and children of Edmonton spent the weekend at the home of Mrs. Dostaler's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Dumas.

Mike Fedoro attended the conference of Ford dealers and advance showing of the '58 models in Calgary recently.

Sputnik! Now This— West Humiliated

By MRS. M. CREIGHTON

Last Thursday evening, about the time the streets lights go on, Lac la Biche was subjected to what has been declared by the town's best nuclear scientific brains to be an invasion from the moon. Estimated to be from three to four hundred strong, the creatures immediately began knocking on doors without any sign of embarrassment, and the only way found to get rid of them was to appease them with candy and other treats.

Coming as does, on the heels of the recent announcement of the successful launching of Sputnik by the Russians, this great scientific achievement by the dwellers of the moon has left the town dazed and humiliated. To reach the earth was one thing, but to be able to go back to the moon so quietly is just out of this world.

When asked for comment, the president of the society for the preservation and advancement of nuclear geophysics in Lac la Biche said, "We have been humiliated indeed! But certain invaluable facts have been gained:

1. Moon dwellers are smaller than the earth's inhabitants.
2. Clothing styles on the moon are years behind those of the earth.
3. Although the moon has a surplus of green cheese, it is deficient in sugar, carbohydrates and peanuts."

The president said that if anyone finds signs of a fresh launching of any vehicle large enough to carry three or four hundred people back to the moon to please notify him at once. He says it could be a flying saucer, a balloon, a rocket or a sputnik.

Clubs Combine For Hallowe'en Party

LAC LA BICHE — The Young People's Club and the CGIT combined forces for a masquerade party Hallowe'en night in the Masonic Hall.

The evening concluded with a bounteous lunch. Rev. S. Munro and Mrs. Proctor were supervisors for the evening.

Ask Tax On Basement Suites

CALGARY (BUP) — The Union of Alberta Municipalities has passed a resolution calling on the provincial government to make money-making basement suites the subject of a special property or business tax.

The convention, held last week in Calgary, unanimously approved a motion from Edmonton proposing a study of "additional revenue" for municipalities from dwellings used by more than one family on revenue-producing basis. Now only those buildings classified as apartments are assessed as commercial property.

New deal suggestions from provincial treasurer Edgar Hinman and provincial secretary Alfred Hooke brought quick reaction from the Lethbridge delegation. The gathering accepted a resolution proposed by the southern Alberta city opposing the introduction of a fixed mill rate for municipalities.

Other motions passed during final sessions of the three day convention included proposed abolition of the oil royalty dividend; no annexation of city suburbs to take place without a majority vote on referendum in those suburbs; depreciation charges to be included in hospital costs to patients and the provincial government should bear the total cost of provincial highways through towns.

The Wrong Kind

Madge — Don't you sailors have a special ship where you get your hair cut? A sort of floating barber shop?

Sailor — No, there ain't no such ships in our fleet.

Madge — Then what are these clipper ships I've heard so much about?

Most anyone can find fault, anyway, anywhere, anyhow.

Breakers Ahead

The way things are looking, historians of the future may have to tell posterity about the tubular steel rock on which foundered three separate ships of state.

We refer to the Trans Canada Pipeline, which undoubtedly sparked the trend which culminated in the downfall of the St. Laurent administration.

Victors in the election which followed the historic Trans Canada Pipeline debate were the Conservatives. They just barely made a majority, and will most certainly have to rely on the support of the Social Credit group in Parliament.

In the pre-election Pipe Line debate, the Social Credit group supported the Liberals, not the Conservatives.

Meanwhile, the recurring criticism and nagging doubts of any real control of the line by Canadians have led to a shuffling of shares and Home Oil, which calls Alberta its home base, says it has now become the biggest individual shareholder in the line. The money which St. Laurent and Howe's government loaned to the company to enable it to get started has been repaid. Not with earnings, of course, but with some other money which has since been subscribed to the capital.

Now, while Alberta's oil industry struggles in the doldrums, and Gas Trunkline takes a steady dive to $11 on the Calgary exchange before starting upward again, Mr. Manning flies to Ottawa right in the middle of a liquor plebiscite to speak to Mr. Diefenbaker about the dark situation for Alberta oil. No doubt he quoted statistics to show how daily allowables are away, away down, and some 2,000 drilling rig employees are not working at their trade.

So what does Diefenbaker do but announce that the question of natural gas export permits — on which Alberta's whole petroleum industry's future is said to be depending—will not be proceeded with until the Royal Commission Inquiry he has ordered into the Trans Canada Pipeline has been completed, and its report studied.

This really threw a busted drill stem into the hole. It rocked Alberta's oilmen, and shocked Alberta's Solon E. Low to the point that he has announced disappointment and disapproval. He hints darkly that if the Tories want to play that kind of ball, Social Credit support may wander over to the Liberal side in the House of Commons.

See now how two more governments have been placed in jeopardy by that stubborn steel tube? If Social Credit support is lacking when a vote of confidence is called in the Commons, Diefenbaker may be out. Likewise, if the wave of oil prosperity which Albertans have been enjoying should suddenly peter out and a semblance of hard times return, the Alberta Government may also find itself in trouble. After all is said and done, the recent plebiscite on liquor turned out to be a sharp rebuff to the Cabinet. If dwindling returns from oil and gas lead to cuts in municipal grants and shaving of the Citizens' Dividend, why, that Trans Canada Pipeline may turn out to be as disastrous as Ripple Rock, way up there by North Vancouver Island.

The difference is that Ripple Rock is going to be blown up by the government. The Trans Canada Pipeline looks as though it's going to keep right on blowing up governments.

'Miss Universe'

Baltimore Sun

There is an unparalled arrogance in even suggesting that the greatest beauty of all creation can somehow be summed up in a bathing suit and a set of simple statistics against a California back-ground. All Miss Universes are very pretty girls, no doubt, but how would the contestants and judges feel if an 'unidentified flying object' appeared at Long Beach in the midst of some future crowning and from it there emerged a prefect theorem, say, or a platonic Idea, to blind the eyes and make a mockery of tape measures?

A SONNET

On Remembrance Day

By H. D. CARRIGAN

November's ice steals swiftly o'er the mere
And frosted bands enthrall the quaking ground;
The last, belated grey goose, sunward bound,
Cries out the death knell of the failing year:
Tolling, the chapel bell in voice austere,
Gives preface to a Silence deep, profound,
While hearts and lips bereft, with scarce a sound,
In Requiem the Absent Dead revere.

Thou Brave who lie in earthy Gallic bed,
Hallowed on clay thou blasted in the strife,
Thy coverlet the drooping Flanders flowers,
Remembrance — nay — repentance shall be ours.

Then sleep, sleep . . . Sleep, thou calm unyielding Dead!
Death hath its peace, more so than peace in life.

—(From the volume Slender Sheaves, first published 1932.)

November 11 – Remember

When the signal for two minutes silence is sounded on Remembrance Day, let your heart go into communion with millions of others throughout the world, and grieve for the Absent Dead.

All the heartbreak, the futile longing, the emptiness, the fruitlessness of life without a loved one should mean much more. The Dead were Christlike in that they died that we might live. We shall remember them.

Mutual Aid Or Grab

Self-Help Society Call

We are told the Alberta legislature will be asked at the next session to authorize the confiscation of credit unions funds, to the extent of 5% of members' interest payments, for the purpose of creating a "mutual aid" fund. A recent plebiscite among credit union boards of directors went in favor of the proposal by a slim majority of 52%.

A majority of those who voted, that is. According to the government office in charge of credit unions, only 143 of 246 active credit unions registered a vote. Their membership aggregates 28,000 of a total 54,500 in the province.

This means, in practical terms, that a handful of directors, representing only about 14,500 credit union members who probably were never consulted, can tell 40,000 other credit union members, who probably never heard of the scheme, that 5% of the interest they pay on loans from their own savings co-op will be confiscated.

To make the situation more nebulous, the plebiscite was apparently promoted by the Credit Union League, but the league does not represent all credit unions in the province. In that case, why was a government office assigned the job of running a plebiscite at public expense to satisfy one faction?

Credit union people who object, say it is a scheme to make the efficient support the inefficient. They argue that loan and share insurance each cost credit unions little more than a ½% premium—but this "mutual aid" scheme is starting off at ten times that much.

Opponents suggest that rather than authorise this grab, the legislature might better fulfil its responsibilities by ordering an inquiry into an inefficency insurance program, one which can be run on actuarial, rather than totalitarian lines. An important point here is that each credit union at present is obliged to put 20% of interest payments into its own disaster fund. Why another 5% into an outside fund? Especially a fund outside the direct control of the people whose money it is?

Note and Comment

Young people, in schools and churches, should be encouraged to think about the real meaning of the word "success."

While waiting for a bus on New York's Fifth Avenue, I noticed a woman looking another over from head to toe. When she finally completed her appraisal, the victim smiled and asked cheerfully' "Well —what's the verdict?"

A tourist was being taken for his first New York taxi ride. The cabby wheeled wildly in and out of traffic, honking his horn and cursing other drivers. Suddenly a pedestrian stepped off the curb against the light and the cabby slammed on the brakes to miss him. Apparently figuring such unusual courtesy called for an explanation, he turned around to the passenger and said: "If you hit 'em, you gotta fill out a report."

Entertaining three applicants for a choice job, Thomas Edison based his choice on the results of the test. The three were seated in a circle facing each other. Each was told that either a black or a white dot was to be placed on his forehead.

ALL 3 DOTS WERE BLACK!

At a signal, each was to begin tapping on the table if he saw a black dot on any forehead, and to stop tapping only if he could determine the color of the dot on his own fore-head.

After a few moments one stopped. He correctly had determined his was black. How did he know!

Wants Garden For Edmonton

EDMONTON (BUP) — A professor at the University of Alberta suggests that Edmonton start a botanical garden along the lines of the famous Kew Gardens in London.

Dr. Harold Brody, professor of botany told a gathering of women during the weekend that a botanical garden was something Albertans could look forward to in the near future. A suitable piece of land could be set aside, planned not merely as a park-like show place, but as a permanent collection of as many kinds of plants as can be grown in this altitude.

AGRICULTURAL EXTENSION SERVICE

The Department of Agriculture of the Government of Alberta maintains a Province-wide Extension Service which is constantly concerned in bringing information to farm families and assisting them to apply it.

District Agriculturists and District Home Economists, who comprise the field staff, are strategically located at 45 centers throughout the Province. These highly qualified workers provide direct, friendly assistance to farm people in planning their operations so that they may achieve the maximum in profit and satisfaction from their efforts. This is not done by arbitrarily telling them what they should do, but rather by bringing to them basic and scientific information and encouraging them to apply it in reaching better decisions.

Some farm families need only to be told of the latest research developments, while in others there is a need to consider a more or less complete revision of their operations.

The principal methods used are:

1. Supervision by field staff of the organization and operation of 4-H Clubs.
2. Provision of information by field staff with respect to specific problems, including better sires and seed.
3. Provision of general information through the medium of short courses, radio, press, etc.
4. Provision of specialists to assist farm families with more complicated problems.
5. Encouragement to farm families to solve their own problems by group discussion, with Extension workers present to provide information.

The Alberta Department has the highest ratio in Canada of Home Economics to number of occupied farms and was the first to have a specialist in home designing. The average number of occupied farms per District Agriculturist is about 1900, and per District Home Economist about 3500.

PROVINCIAL SCHOOLS OF AGRICULTURE AND HOME ECONOMICS

The Schools of agriculture and Home Economics provide practical training to young men and women who intend to make careers in modern farming and homemaking. Each school consists of modern dormitories, class rooms, laboratories, shops and barns. A farm is operated in conjunction with each school to provide practical instruction.

Schools are located at Olds, Vermilion and Fairview. The term is from late October to early April. The course for boys is one or two terms, depending on qualifications. In 1956, the course for girls became a one-year course.

Boys taking the two-year course in agriculture must have passed their 17th birthday by December 31st of the year in which they apply. For all other courses the minimum age (at registration) is 16 years. Both boys and girls must have grade 9 standing for entrance; however, consideration is given to older students who may have lower grades.

There are no tuition fees for residents of Alberta.

Approximate yearly cost for board and room, text books, and classroom materials is about $275.00.

AGRICULTURAL COURSES

The object of the course is to equip young men with practical knowledge necessary for farm operations. It includes:

Plant husbandry—animal husbandry.
Farm Mechanics (including carpentry, blacksmithing and welding).
Farm Management.
Poultry—dairying—horticulture.

The course in science shows the application of science in farming practice. English and public speaking are studied.

HOME ECONOMICS COURSES

While the course in Home Economics allows considerable time for the study of foods, clothing and home management, other subjects include typing, bookkeeping, English, horticulture, public speaking, poultry and home nursing.

Special laboratories are maintained for the study of Home Economics.

The Alberta Government courses in Agriculture and Home Economics not only provide valuable training in these specific subjects but, as well, furnish students with experiences in living which will serve them well throughout their lives.

Diefenbaker Gets Alberta Prime Beef

"Prime Alberta beef for the Prime Minister of Canada" formed part of the unusual banquet proceedings which concluded the annual meeting of the Canadian Tourist Association in Ottawa Oct. 25. Tourist representatives from each province presented Prime Minister Diefenbaker, an ardent outdoorsman, with a sample of fish for which that province is noted. Alberta's presentation, last on the program, deviated by drawing attention to the fact that this province holds a dominant position in the Canadian beef industry in addition to her fame for petroleum. Hon. A. R. Patrick, Alberta Minister of Economic Affairs, and R. R. Moore, deputy minister, presented banquet guest speaker Rt. Hon. J. G. Diefenbaker with a 16-pound "oven ready, standing rib roast."

Easier Tacking

THE handling of tacks is greatly simplified with the use of a magnetic hammer and a slanting pickup surface. Here's how it's accomplished: Use a 12 x 14-inch piece of Masonite Presdwood, fastening a block of wood to one end, as illustrated in American Builder. Spill some tacks at the upper end of the incline, and they will assume a head down position when the board is jarred slightly. With their heads facing in one direction, it's a simple matter to pick them up, one at a time, with a magnetic hammer, and drive them home.

140th Anniversary Of Foundation Bank Of Montreal, Marked Nov. 3

Bankers throughout the Prairie Provinces and all of Canada are looking back across 15 decades of history to recall the beginning of the Canadian banking system, acknowledged everywhere as among the best in the world.

The date, Nov. 3rd, marked the 140th anniversary of the foundation of the Bank of Montreal, Canada's first bank and the first permanent bank west of the Great Lakes.

On that day in 1817, a modest office opened for business in Montreal. The "Montreal Bank" as the B of M was known in its earliest days, had a capital of $250,000 and was the creation of nine Montreal merchants who saw the need for banking facilities in the fledging nation. It had a total staff of seven.

From their enterprise has grown the present Bank of Montreal, with 721 offices from coast to coast in Canada, including 44 in Saskatchewan, 76 in Alberta and 33 in Manitoba, and with assets in excess of $2,700,000,000 and a staff of some 12,000 men and women.

When the B of M began operations, the population of Canada was about 500,000 and the Prairies had few human inhabitants except for Indians drifting after buffalo.

The B of M introduced Canada's first native currency immediately and within two weeks had opened its first branch. These two innovations, half a century before Confederation, were the beginnings of the Canadian financial structure and the Canadian system of branch-banking.

From those early developments, the bank grew as the nation grew. As the years passed, the bank spread its branches across the country.

The B of M office opened in Winnipeg in 1877 was the first permanent bank west of the Great Lakes. At that time, Winnipeg's population was numbered in the hundreds and the transportation industry was still represented by the horse, ox-cart and dog-sled.

Despite many popular misgivings as to the practicability of a transcontinental railway and the agricultural value of the lands between Manitoba and the Rockies, the bank placed its resources behind the building of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

In the opening up of the west which followed, B of M branches went hand in hand with the pioneers and were established at key points from eastern sea to western at an early date.

The first Regina branch opened in 1882, that in Calgary in 1886.

The B of M's first Edmonton branch was opened in 1903.

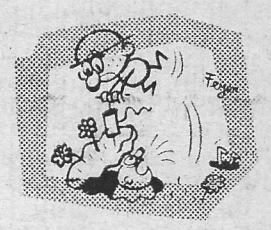
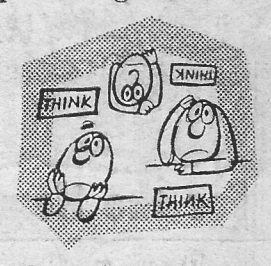
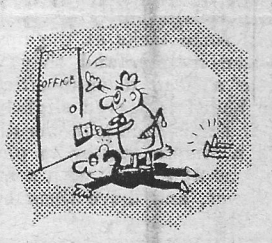
people compete in the oil business



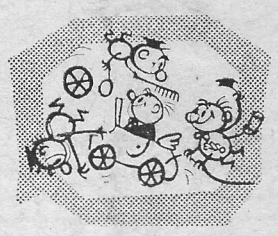
Did you know there are more than 10,000 people engaged in the search for oil in Canada? We know it, because we run into plenty of them each time we try to lease promising oil lands.



Did you know there are hundreds of skilled chemists and engineers in Canada's 42 refineries? We know it, because our own technical people have to work hard to stay ahead of the others in producing better products at lower cost.



Did you know Canada's oil companies employ thousands of salesmen to market their products? We know it, because every day our own sales people are competing with salesmen from other companies.



Canada's hundreds of oil companies wage vigorous competition. The result is increased efficiency, and benefits to the consumer.
